Tolerance through Literary World*

OVERVIEW

English Literature Study Programs of Universitas Islam Sultan Agung (UNISSULA) has collaborated with many universities across the globe in fostering internationalization and mutual benefit in education, research, and other areas involving the lecturers as well as the students.

One of the programs highlighted by English Literature Study Program is the cultural exchange program for UNISSULA students and partner universities' students. This program is intended to give opportunities for students to exchange their culture, collaborate with people with different backgrounds, and build a better understanding of how they see people from different cultures. As we know, there are many conflicts happening these days because of the lack of understanding of other cultures. Thus, this program will lead the students to have a broader perspective on how they see the world and treat people from other cultures.

In addition, in order to minimize any conflicts among people from different backgrounds, there is a need for building tolerance among people. Promoting tolerance will also support one of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) formulated by the United Nation that is peace, justice, and strong institutions. It is expected that we will have a global society that upholds the value of peace and justice. In this program, the participants are encouraged to think about the role of literary world in building tolerance among people from various backgrounds.
